NATIONAL ASSOCIATION EDUCATIONAL BROADCASTERS

The National Ass

WHAT IS NAEB?

The National Association of Educational Broadcasters is a national organization of institutions and organizations who broadcast educational programs and who have banded together to promote educational programs and station operation on educational radio.

WHY DO WE NEED NAEB?

A National Association is needed to bring together the mutual ideas and desires. In recent years, the twenty educational FM channels have been defined by the FCC definition to protect educational broadcasting verbatim. NAEB has secured recognition from the FCC on matters affecting membership. NAEB has given testimony at many hearings before Congress to advance the cause of public service.

WHAT DOES NAEB OFFER?

First—a chance to exchange ideas on constitutional problems. This is done at national meetings. For meeting dates see the NAEB newsletter.

Second—The NAEB newsletter. This contains "how to do" information affecting members and persons interested in educational broadcasting.

Third—a chance to advance educational broadcasting action. The NAEB is always ready to help any member or members or educational broadcaster.

WHO CAN JOIN NAEB

Any university, college, or institution with recognized standing engaged in educational broadcasting over a radio station owned and operated by the institution and a construction permit for such station in this organization by approval of the affirmative vote of all active members shall be entitled to one vote.

Any individual, accredited by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, engaged in educational broadcasting, and approved by approval of the affirmative vote of all active members shall have all the privileges of active membership and be permitted to vote or to hold office.

ociation of Educatic

Educational Broadcasters is a group of institutions that operate non-commercial educational stations to exchange ideas and information regarding broadcasting and to promote the general cause of education.

It is necessary to put the needed weight behind our efforts. In recent years NAEB was instrumental in securing additional channels. NAEB drafted proposed changes in the educational FM channels—these were adopted with favorable consideration on hearings before the House and their facilities. NAEB has presented its views before Congressional and other committees to improve service broadcasting in America.

We exchange ideas and secure help with station and institutional problems primarily through organized and casual contact. See next page.

A newsletter is distributed each month to all members. It contains "item" items, editorials, digests of national news and local notes of member activity.

We promote the cause of educational radio through group action and are ready to lend its full support to matters affecting educational radio in general.

Any other educational or public service agency of which an educational, non-commercial broadcasting station is owned, controlled, or operated by it or any such agency holding a station, may be elected to active membership in the association, and a two-thirds majority of the executive committee, and a two-thirds majority of the members of the association. Each active member

Any educational institution or public service agency which is not a station licensee may become an associate member of this association, and a two-thirds majority of the executive committee, and a two-thirds majority of the members of the association. Associate members shall have no vote in the association, except that they shall not be eligible for office.

MEETINGS—TIMES, PLACES

The NAEB holds a regular convention each fall, usually in October and usually at one of the member institutions. All forms of business are considered at this meeting, resolutions are acted upon and officers are elected. In addition programs are arranged to discuss current problems of management, programs, engineering, and allied subjects.

Regular business meetings are also held each spring during the Institute for Education by Radio in Columbus, Ohio. These meetings are arranged so that they do not conflict with the splendid educational and informative features of the Institute. All forms of business except election of officers are transacted at these meetings.

Educational, non-commercial radio stations have one goal—to provide a constantly available source of wholesome entertainment and to present information on socially significant topics at times when the greatest mass can listen.
